

Alberto Tarozi is full professor in the sector SPS/07 General Sociology at the Department of Economics, Management, Society and Institutions of the Università del Molise.

He taught at the Università degli Studi di Bologna where he held the chair of Development Sociology (1983-2005) as associate professor.

He published volumes and essays in Italian, French, English, Spanish and German. He wrote on different issues from general sociology to development sociology such as initiatives of civil society in the field of voluntary action and social movements, limits to growth in the complex societies, links between social changes, modernization and morphology of the contemporary social systems, crossed by the globalization problems. On these topics he faced intercultural problems, both in the migratory processes and in the development cooperation, always keeping in mind both the disruption of the social fiduciary capital.

International curriculum.

Maitre de Conference Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales of Paris (1991 and 1996) at the Research Center on the eco-development directed by Ignacy Sachs; Visiting Fellow at the OECD Paris Development Centre (1991).

Advisor for Italian NGO on the evaluation of programs for developing the Italian cooperation (Tanzania; Kenya; Malawi; Morocco; former Yugoslavia).

Scientific Responsible for University of Molise (Leader project) of ECOLOC ("Energetic efficiency and environmental awareness") an UE financed Programme - Interreg Adriatico IIIA - between Molise and Serbia.

Scientific Responsible Med.In.Molise (2008) an UE co-financed Project on cultural mediation.